

Tell us what you think about the public procurement system in Scotland

The Scottish Government has asked Blake Stevenson, a social research company, to gather feedback about recent experiences of the public procurement system in Scotland.

The research will inform future development of public procurement processes, ensuring that it is as inclusive as possible.

If you are:

- a third sector organisation; or
- a new private business (set up less than five years ago)

then we would like to hear from you.

You do not need to have experience of bidding for public sector contracts to take part in the research

Your views will help organisations to better access, compete for and deliver public contracts

If you would like to take part in the research, or if you require any more information, please contact Lena at Blake Stevenson using the details below:

 0131 667 2919

 lena@blakestevenson.co.uk

Participation involves taking part in a short telephone/online interview where we will ask you about your experiences and views of the procurement system.
